GreyWorks 2012 is the Fourth Workshop in the Summer Series focusing on strategies in grey literature carried out by researchers in Europe and North America.

The strategies or inroads to grey literature deal with • specific subject areas and disciplines • various document types in electronic and print formats • open access and business models • supply-side publishing and demand-side access, as well as • quality assessment and curriculum development in the field of grey literature.

The workshop is conducted by Dominic Farace, founder and director of the Grey Literature Network Service. Farace is program planner for the international conference series on grey literature, book and journal editor, guest lecturer, author, and recipient of the Golden Candle Award 2000 (USA) and the Victorine van Schaick Prize 2008 (Netherlands).

GreyWorks 2012 is geared to information professionals and practitioners involved in the areas of policy development and management of grey literature collections, the production and publication of grey literature, and research and education in library and information sciences. For newcomers to grey literature, GreyWorks 2012 will bring you up to speed with the state of the art in the field. For the vanguard in grey literature, this workshop will explore current research initiatives, challenging one to rethink existing strategies.

Strategic Mapping of Grey Literature offers a mix of formal presentation, participant exercises, and informal discussion.

The first in this series is a workshop organized by InfoEthics UK in collaboration with GreyNet International and will be held in Oxford

Grey Literature and Information Ethics: Key Shared Concerns

The underlying premise of this workshop is that by acquiring a better understanding of information ethics, a fuller understanding of what grey literature is and is not will be achieved.

GreyNet International and InfoEthics UK share certain key concerns facing the digital information community. Grey literature and information ethics are fundamental to library and information science. In preparation for this workshop, a comparative analysis of key concerns in both areas identified • peer review • digital preservation • privacy • standardization • validation and • equitable pricing as formidable challenges that must be addressed.

Jonathan Gordon-Till and Sylvia Simmons (InfoEthics UK) were founder members in 1992 of the Institute of Information Scientists Ethics Task Force, developing a pioneering Code of Professional Practice for information professionals. Dominic Farace founded the Grey Literature Network Service in 1992, which is dedicated to Research, Publication, Open Access, and Education in the field of Grey Literature.

The workshop is geared to information professionals in all sectors who are involved in the processes of production, distribution, use and/or application of grey literature. In managing these processes an increased appreciation of the outcomes of ethical dilemmas and the risks in ethical decision-making can be calculated and accounted for.

The further use of electronic publishing has come to change the scale and diversity of grey literature facing librarians and other information practitioners. This compiled work brings together research and authorship over the past decade dealing with both the supply and demand sides of grey literature. While this book is written with students and instructors of Colleges and Schools of Library and Information Science in mind, it likewise serves as a reader for information professionals working in any and all like knowledge-based communities. About GreyNet Newsletter

This serial publication endeavors to keep information professionals abreast of developments in the field of grey literature. The quarterly newsletter gives exposure to GreyNet's information resources and frontline activities with special emphasis on the International Conference Series on Grey Literature. The GreyNet Newsletter is licensed by EBSCO Publishing and can also be accessed via the Library, Information Science & Technology Abstracts (LISTA) full-text database. This serial publication is made possible through the support of GreyNet's Associate Members and Corporate Authors: FLICC-FEDLINK of the Library of Congress (USA), INIST (France), New York Academy of Medicine (USA), EBSCO Publishing (USA), the National Technical Library (Czech Republic), and Japan Science and Technology Agency.

Grey Literature is a field in library and Information science that deals with the production, distribution, and access to multiple document types produced on all levels of government, academics, business, and organization in electronic and print formats not controlled by commercial publishing i.e. where publishing is not the primary activity of the producing body.
